OUR BUSINESS

Iran is considered one of the largest Islamic countries. It is also the largest manufacturer of scarf fabric in the world. Iran is one of the exporter of scarf that has been able to sell its products to various countries including Turkmenistan, Azerbaijan, Russia and European countries, Middle East and East Asian countries. Scarf fabric is a product suitable for shawl and scarf manufacturers. Iranian scarf fabric is completely competitive with foreign sexes. Iranian scarf fabric is quite competitive with other countries .Since Iran is an Islamic country and its women wear hijab, it is also the largest producer of scarf fabric. The production of scarf and scarf dates back to 1920. In fact, we can say from the very beginning that we have had textile machines for this type of fabric at the scarf factory. From the past to the present day humans have chosen different ways to cover their bodies. The ways in which men and women have often differed. The choice of type of cover also goes back to personal interest in the culture, nationality, religion, and place where you live. The history of shawls and scarves and their use for women existed in Iran not only after Islam but also before Islam. However, wearing headscarves and scarves these days is popular not only in Islamic countries but also in other parts of the world

In Iran, the history of shawl and scarfs has a special place, as shown earlier. It generally provides you with a variety of types. These ladies' rights these days, as you can see the incredible variety of designs, colors, shawls and scarfs, you can choose and you can choose the one for the Iranian women. However, they are available to tell you that textiles give you the variety and quality of vision to be seen. In Islamic countries, women choose shawls and headscarves as a means of becoming more beautiful and beautiful, and because of their high need for this product, they often have a wide variety of sexes, designs, colors, and dimensions. In the past there were different kinds of scarves and scarves, for example, ladies and wives of politicians who chose a fabric called a tent but in a shorter size that are very similar to our modern scarf. . It is noteworthy that the scarf and scarf have their own shape and appearance in every culture and society. In European countries, the use of scarves and booming dates back to the 18th and 19th centuries, and nowadays in Western countries, for example, men use small scarves as necklaces. In ancient Rome, women wore headscarves with wool, wool or silk fabrics to decorate and cover their heads. This is one of the oldest cases of scarf use in Europe that has been recorded in history. In a country like India, wool scarves have also been used as a knitwear for women and sometimes as a cover for the mouth and face. In the UK, traditional scarves with special colors and stripes have also been traditionally used to rank students in schools. Currently, many East Asian and European countries want Iranian scarves.

About factory

Standard Chartered

Fabrics are up to date with world, European and Iranian standards.

With many years of experience in the field of scarf and scarf production, Tiaram Manufacturing Group has achieved this skill. Since 1995 we have been able to produce this kind of products by equipping the factory with knitting machines. Due to the fact that scarfs are very common in Iran, we were able to sell very well at the time, which made our factories thrive any better. Almost 90% of our shawl and scarf manufacturers make our raw materials and fabrics through us. We received the honorary diploma of the best manufacturers of scarfs, linen and veils in 2012

Quality control

We have a regular procedure for quality control of fabrics . The fabrics are examined and tested by the quality control engineer at each shift. The quality control engineer examines some of them in the lab where each fabric is manufactured. And they are examined for the order of the fabric and the fabric as well as for the proper finishing and the amount of softening that is applied to the fabric. Apart from that each device has one operator. Every 8-hour shift we also have a quality control engineer .We have a production line quality control device .The first place that machine vision can be used is where the fabric is being manufactured, meaning it can be combined with the knitting machine. There may be 200 to 400 or more devices in each system, and the hardware cost may be very low.

Imaging using a camera mounted on the device is a very difficult task due to the vibration that the software has eliminated to a large extent. An alternative to fabric-mounted cameras is an independent quality control unit, which is one of the more common options. Specifically, defects in fabric production can be remedied, so the raw fabric can be potentially run at high speed offline. Depending on the type of fabric, there are 5 to 6 different types of lighting that change during processing. The lighting system used is of the category of very bright lighting, low angle lighting and reflective lights. This process of quality control enables the fabric to be produced without loss to the consumer.
